Mossad in Kenya

The difference between MOSSAD and other spy agencies is that, they sometimes lay plans for something that would be achieved even 50 years in the future, long after the planners retired or died.

Mossad started plotting how to conquer Kenya, shortly before independence in 1963.

Apparently, they were confident that once United Kingdom authorities left, newly independent Kenya would be weak, and they could conquer it easily, under the radar.

However, it so happened that, independent Kenya's first government was made up of the most sophisticated people in the country, at the time.

It was impenetrable for MOSSAD.

But MOSSAD never gives up, once they have set a certain goal.

They merely change tactics, and take more time to achieve it, even if it means several decades in future.

In the Kenya case, after finding it impossible to penetrate the government, they decided to introduce their IMPOSTORS (MOLES) into the country.

For the MOLES to pass as Kenyans, they needed to be brought to Kenya while in their early teens, so they attend local schools.

MOSSAD successfully did this, but then they faced another problem - The IMPOSTORS couldn't penetrate higher echelons of government, since 1st independent Kenya government had set strict conditions for someone to be appointed to high-level positions like Cabinet Secretary, Ambassador etc.

To be appointed to these positions, you had to pass a thorough background check - and the Mossad IMPOSTORS just couldn't pass.

Mzee Jomo Kenyatta's govt set this condition.

Daniel arap Moi's govt followed same rules.

DITTO Mwai Kibaki's and Uhuru Kenyatta's govts.

NOTE: During Kibaki's first term as president, a certain curious event took place.

It was just a minor news story.

Probably most Kenyans didn't think much about it, but for some reason, I thought it quite peculiar, and looked for info about the matter in the media.

The case went like this: A certain relatively prominent lady was nominated by the president to take up a senior position in govt.

The lady was well educated, eloquent, knowledgeable...I had watched her on TV several times, when she appeared as an expert on certain matters.

When I read in the newspaper that she had been nominated to that senior govt post, I thought that was a good decision by the president.

Then a few days later, it was reported that her nomination had been revoked.

I thought that was quite odd...

I was curious and searched in the newspapers about why her appointment had been revoked.

At least one media report suggested she did not pass NSIS (Currently National Intelligence Service, NIS) security check, but didn't explain why.

I left it at that.

But now, knowing what I know, I think it is very likely that when NSIS went looking about her early life, they hit a wall.

They just couldn't find anything about her early life.

It was like she fell from the sky to Kenya as a young teenager.

(There are some other issues regarding the matter, that to me show she was very likely an IMPOSTOR - similar to how I have outed several "Kenyan" Mossad IMPOSTORS)

If indeed that was the case, then it is also possible that there were other Mossad MOLES who had suffered similar fate, even before the event above.

Once again, MOSSAD had to change tactics - it was not enough to have their IMPOSTORS in the country.

In order for their MOLES to rise up in govt, they had to be embedded into REAL Kenyans, so that as these REAL Kenyans rose in govt (with Mossad's subtle help), the IMPOSTORS rose too.

59 years after Kenya independence, MOSSAD finally managed to put a regime in place, where a person did not need to pass National Intelligence Service (NIS) security check to occupy any senior position in govt.

The closest aide to current Kenya head of state is a Mossad MOLE called Farouk Kibet.

Farouk was embedded into Mr William Ruto around 25 years ago.

As Mr Ruto rose politically (with Mossad's assistance), Farouk's political influence increased.

Farouk cannot pass a genuine NIS security check.

Yet, he calls the shots at State House.

If you are the head of state, and your closest aide - your most trusted adviser - cannot pass national security check, there is no way you can demand anyone else pass security test to occupy any position in your govt.

MOSSAD is very patient.

It took them 59 years to conquer Kenya.

59 long years.

Very likely that all members of the first Mossad agents' team in the 'Conquer-Kenya Project' are long dead.

Farouk Kibet - the ENIGMA

Nobody in the village wanted to be identified by name, or to talk about him. Some said he excelled in football in his earlier years. Others had no idea where he went to school. Some said he went to Chepkemel Primary School, within the area, but they were not sure.

Others testified to his generosity in building churches through fundraisers. Others simply walked away from our inquiries whenever we broached the subject.

"No comment!" Stephen Kewa, a political aspirant, curtly told us in Kapkatembu when we introduced ourselves. We prodded him further to give us the positive values he ascribed to Farouk from his interactions, but he stuck to his guns: "No comment."

Later, we saw him hobnobbing with Farouk — picking discussions — but the man was too busy to sustain them.

TACTICS: Mesmerise Kenyans with tall tales – Mossad-supplied facts, mixed with lies – so they can become popular, then control the narrative.

AIM: Use their control of the narrative to lead #RutoMustGo movement.

GOAL: Lead both sides of politics in Kenya – Since they already control Ruto thru moles like Farouk Kibet, Veronica Maina, Anthony Mwaura, Raymond Omollo etc.
